

GOLF

All new greens at Coffeyville Hillcrest Country club golf course now have been planted, thanks to the recent timely rain. Portions of the old rough have been plowed up, to fallow during the winter for planting next spring as portions of the new fairways. The biggest patches of such work was done on the new No. 2 and No. 4 fairways.

All work to be done this fall was to be completed today. A little more planting, especially on the course will be ready for its first tees, next spring, and the new season.
