Twin Hills Course To Open Labor Day

GET out all of your woods and irons, you city golfers, in anticipation of having use for every one of them in a real test of golf Labor day.

For on that day the new Twin Hills Golf club officially will be opened.

Members of the Country club, Lakside club and Lincoln Park club are invited to try their skill over the eighteen holes embodied in this picturesque course.

Until September 17 these invited guests may play around at Twin Hills, free of charge. Then the links will be closed to all except club members.

All persons wishing to play Labor day must register with either R. A. Conliff, telephone Walnut 1030, or A. E. Maidt, telephone Maple 0097.

Everybody will be paired in a Labor day foursome tourney.

There is to be no feature match Monday, but the golfer turning in the lowest card for eighteen holes will be rewarded the following Sunday. Then he will play around in a colorful foursome with Keefe Carter, Bobby Cruickshank and Bill Creavy.

Par at Twin Hills has been set at 70, an equal number of strokes on both nines. The total yardage for the course is 6,400.

Winter rules will govern the Labor day competition in order to protect the tender grass on the fairways. It is planned to enforce summer scoring in October.

Persons who have not visited Twin Hills during the last six weeks will be agreeably surprised when they view the grounds Monday.

Now the fairways are an unending green carpet of Bermuda grass. The greens have a healthy stand of a finer vein of imported Bermuda, inviting one to feel out his trusty old putter on their close cropped springy surfaces.

At least 200 golfers will shoot around Monday, it is expected by the club officials.

Here are the par figures on the eighteen holes:

Hole	10	11	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
