

Golf Talk

Billy Dougan and his aeroplane are to be at the golf course. He is going to use the 120 acres just West of where the course is layed out. Billy has been using a tract of land farther out of town and evidently just discovered this new place was better located and lays especially well for a landing place for aeroplanes. He says he believes it is the best landing place in this section of the country. Such a place is going to be needed by the government and it certainly would be a good thing if someone could inform them of the advantages of this tract for landing purposes.

Gerald LaStrange, an insurance man of Milwaukee, played golf with Leo Johnson. He said we had a "peach of a course".

We can't help but mix football with this on golf. Can you imagine a bunch of fellows putting up a better fight for a game than the Wildcats did yesterday at Carthage? With Geyer and McNabb out of the game and playing on a strange field against a heavier team and then preventing them from making a touchdown. We believe that under favorable conditions; we mean all of the players in good shape; we would have won the game.

Mr. Perry Maxwell was here last Sunday and looked over the course again with the idea of changing the greens. All but one of the greens are to be changed. Each makes the course a little sportier. If it is made much more difficult, there will be some of us who will be unable to get around at all.

A recent article in one of the daily papers, stated that good golf practice would be to use the clubs in cleaning the yard of leaves. One could get in about 7,175,215 good strokes cleaning the ordinary yard and then the wind would likely blow them back on the yard and you could have the same good time getting them off again.
