

WORK STARTED ON ADA LINKS

Perry Maxwell Is Building
New Golf Course.

ADA, Jan. 9.—(Special)—Work has been started on Ada's new golf and country club, which will be one of the finest small courses in the state. A club building and golf links will be available for enthusiasts by late spring, it has been announced.

The site of the present construction of a club house and golf links was leased to the members of the Ada Golf and Country club for fifty years at a fee of $1 per year by P. A. Norris, Ada cotton seed oil magnate.

The tract of land on which the club house and links are being built comprises eighty acres of land adjoining Norris' palatial Goose Hill mansion, east of the city.

Perry Maxwell of Ardmore, designer and builder of the Dornick Hills Country club golf course at Ardmore and the Twin Hills links at Oklahoma City and a number of other excellent golf courses in Oklahoma and surrounding states is in active charge of laying out the Ada course, which will be replete with hazards and other delights for the golfer.

A quarter mile of hard surfaced road is being constructed from the Ada-Alien highway to link up the club and golf course.
