A big power shovel, trucks, teams, plows and plenty of men are busy this week on the new course at Hillcrest Country club. As an example of how greatly different the new course will be, consider the work of two different crews yesterday: One group of workmen was scooping up a lot of dirt off the old No. 5 fairway and dumping several feet north, to form the new No. 8 green. Another group was clearing out brush and trees north of the old No. 1 green, to let the new No. 2 fairway through.
