

Pine Hills Golf Course At Dam Will Open For Play June 1

KENTUCKY DAM VILLAGE STATE PARK, May 3—Pine Hills Golf Course will be opened here June 1, Conservation Commissioner Henry Ward announced today.

The beautiful, pine-dotted, nine hole course, the latest addition to Kentucky's newest vacation spot, will be operated under the direction of Brooks Starr, former professional at Princeton and Paducah.

The course was planned by Harry Maxwell, of Tulsa, Okla., one of the leading golf architects in the country. A native of Marion, Ky., Mr. Maxwell also laid out the old Lakeview Country Club course at Paducah.

Mr. Maxwell had family connections in Paducah and still has interest in property there. His family owned the ground where Welle's and O'Bryan-Hamilton clothing stores stand now and once owned a hotel there known as the "Maxwell House."

The course was built under the direction of Mr. Starr. The rates will be 75 cents for nine holes; $1.25 for 18 holes; $7 a week for guests at the park. The state park course will charge $40 a year for adults and $20 a year for juniors for the benefit of people in the area who want such memberships.

"The course is intended primarily for the benefit of vacationists at Kentucky Dam Village and Kentucky Lake State Park," said Mr. Ward, "and is intended in no way to compete with other courses in Western Kentucky."
