

Fairways which attracted golfing Northside business men during the "prosperous Twenties" will be planted in corn this spring. Sale of the old Jeffersonville Country Club property to Alfred Hall, Prather farmer, was announced last week. The 158-acre property included clubhouse, tennis courts and 18-hole golf course. The membership dwindled after the crash in 1929 until the club finally was abandoned.