

SANTA CLAUS COMES TO ADA COUNTRY CLUB

P. A. Norris Donates 80 Acres
Ground for Use of Ada
Sport Lovers.

Every prospective member of the proposed Ada Country Club, is a firm believer in Santa Claus. While the kiddies were reveling in the prospective visit of Old Kris Kringle and the wonderful gifts he would bring, their fathers who play golf, and some of their mothers, too, were rejoicing over a proposition made to those sponsoring the new organization relative to a permanent site for the club.

P. A. Norris is the Santa Claus of the new Country Club, and the gift which he left in the Club stocking is a 50-year lease on an eighty acre tract just east of his Goose Hill residence at an annual rental of one dollar per year.

At a meeting of the subscribers for stock in the new club held recently, the offer of Mr. Norris was unanimously accepted and an executive committee of twelve was appointed to perfect the details of permanent organization. Perry Maxwell of Ardmore, designer and builder of the Dornick Hills Country Club golf course at Ardmore, Twin Hills at Oklahoma City, and a number of other excellent golf courses in Oklahoma and surrounding states, made an inspection of the site early this week and pronounced it one of the best that he has seen in his experience as a designer of golf courses. Mr. Maxwell will return to Ada tomorrow with a golf course construction foreman and will lay out the course and prepare complete plans for its construction. On his former visit, he stated that the new course would be ready for play within 60 days after construction was started.

The construction of the Club house and other improvements will proceed immediately after a quarter of a mile of road is completed from the site north to the Ada-Allen highway and the entire layout should be ready for use by spring.
