

MRS. MAXWELL IS CRITICALLY ILL

Pioneer Sunday School Teacher in Serious Condition at Daughter's Home.

Mrs. Carrie Maxwell, veteran Sunday school worker of Ardmore, is critically ill at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Arthur C. Straehley, and Mr. Straehley, 911 Stanley boulevard. She suffered a stroke of paralysis a few days ago and is not expected to recover. Her son, Perry Maxwell, was summoned from Ann Arbor, Mich., and is now at her bedside.

Mrs. Maxwell was engaged as a Sunday school teacher for 50 years in both Kentucky and Oklahoma. Her work has been principally with the children entering the Sunday school for the first time. She taught for more than a quarter of a century in the First Presbyterian church of this city and is beloved by hundreds of children now grown who received their first religious instruction from her.