

teet, who planned the course and built it.

Overplay Is Disastrous.

The seventh hole is free from any particular hazard, and affords a short "breathing spell" before approaching eight, which, although a short hole, is set at the point of a knoll, where an overplay means broken clubs and much heart-felt language. Nine is the shortest, and one of the most difficult holes on the present course.

Although only 153 yards long, the shot must be played across a narrow arm of the lake, and onto a green which will be surrounded on three sides with water when the course is complete. This is the test hole of the nine which have been built, and is designed to show the best man of a two-some which has been playing evenly during the entire round.

The clubhouse which has been planned for the course will be located on a small hill just west of the ninth hole. This hill will be placed in such a position that play on five greens may be seen from the veranda. The children's playground will be placed at the rear of the clubhouse, according to Hutchinson. It is intended that the playground, when completed, will have a wading pool, sand boxes and playground apparatus of all sorts members of the Civitan club say.

Drawings Near Completion.

Drawings for the clubhouse have not yet been made, but it is expected that they will be completed this summer, and work will be begun on it in time for the season next year. The remaining nine holes of the course will also be built during the coming year, Hutchinson says. They are being held off at present until the first nine are in perfect condition to play.

The first four holes were set with Bermuda grass Wednesday. This is expected to sod over the first of July, and permit of tournaments this summer. More than 200 players visit the course at present, and this number is expected to increase to 1,000 as soon as the course is in good condition.

Backspin players will be in their element on this course, experts say. The lie of the fairways and the manner in which the greens are raised, will make this style of game the most constantly practiced. Each because there is less chance for supervision of play. The membership card will enable the professional or the groundkeeper to bar from the course those persons who continually refuse to replace divots, or who persist in monopolizing the course, when other players have the right to supersede them. They will also serve to check off those few who may not "play the game."

City Tournament Planned.

Plans are under way for a city tournament to be held in the fall. This will give an opportunity for players to become accustomed to the course, and will allow the grounds committee to draw up a handicap list. Each player will be required to turn in a score card signed by his opponent in match play. This will give his score, and allow of the determination of handicap for each player.

It is possible, Hutchinson said, that an open tournament might be held when the course is officially opened. This will probably take place during the latter part of June, or may be held on July 4. The club hopes to make the course and the game as popular here as it is in other cities, and especially to interest the younger men in the game, affording an opportunity for outdoor recreation which heretofore has been conspicuous by its absence in Oklahoma City.

A great deal of the credit for the course goes to the members of the field and grounds committee and the ways and means committee, members of the Civitan club say. Active work on the course has been under the supervision of the first, with Hutchinson as chairman and Lem Toler, Claude Severin, "Bill" Larson and "Cap" Butler on the committee. The ways and means committee was invested with the duty of providing funds, and in spite of the financial stringency of the past year, W. C. Kito, chairman, and Vergil Alden, W. H. Dudley and Neil O'Sullivan, managed to put it across.

Other Clubs Plan Work.

The remainder of the course is so planned that the eighteenth hole will also lie near the clubhouse, and will be the most difficult hole on the course, Hutchinson said. It will involve a long shot across the water, and also contains a hard approach,