

Saturday Mrs. Carrie Maxwell, her son, Mr. Perry Maxwell, and her daughter, Miss Mary, will leave for California. They will go by the way of Chicago and the Canadian Pacific road to Seattle, and thence by steamer to San Francisco. They will spend the winter at Palo Alto, and the two young people will attend the Leland Stanford University. Mr. P. S. Maxwell, the other member of the household, will, according to his long established custom, spend his winter in Marion, and the big establishment on South Main will be kept open, and Mr. Maxwell's large circle of young friends are looking forward to some swell social functions there during the winter. The California party will be greatly missed from Marion church and social circles, but the gaiety of our bachelor friend will atone for the one, and his well known piety will to some extent make good the loss in the other.
